

EXERCISING THE CONSUMER'S RIGHT TO WITHDRAW FROM THE CONTRACT - FORM

In distance contracts, the consumer has the right to notify the company, within 14 days of receiving the goods, that he withdraws from the contract, without having to give a reason for his decision. The only cost borne by the consumer in connection with the withdrawal from the contract is the direct cost of returning the goods.

Submit the notice of withdrawal with the return form or with an unambiguous statement that clearly indicates that you are withdrawing from the contract. The consumer is deemed to have given the withdrawal statement in time, if it is sent within the time period set for withdrawing from the contract. The burden of proof regarding the exercise of right of withdrawal lies with the consumer. The company must make the refund of payments immediately or at the latest within 14 days of receiving the notice of withdrawal from the contract.
